GOVERNOR HAS SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT

PHOENIX, Oct. 16.—Now Governor Hunt and union labor have something else to worry about.

When the Arizona rifle team, laden with honors, medals and photographs, returned from the shoot at Fort Riley, Kansas, the governor gave a dinner in honor of the high guns.

Now, there wasn't anything so very reprehensible in that, although the State Federation of labor is going to try to persuade the next legislature to abolish the National Guard. There would have been no kick if the governor had not picked out a Chinese restaurant as the scene of the festivities.

From the standpoint of union labor, any Chinese restaurant is unfair. And the governor not only patronized an unfair house but there entertained some twenty national guardsmen.

Instead of taking the rifle team to the dining room of his own hotel, where the cooks and waiters are white men and union members, Hunt escorted the rifle marksmen, sharpshooters and experts to the establishment of Yee Sing & Co., said company being fifteen other celestials who act as cooks, waiters, sweepers, potato peelers and chop suey mixers.

News of the party at Yee Sing's spread rapidly through the city and in a few minutes there was a throng of union men angrily muttering outside the entrance and gazing in through the plate glass windows at the merry scene.

Many were the whispered conferences that were held. "Get a photographer and take a flashlight," suggested one.

The action of the governor in giving a dinner party at a "chink joint" was particularly surprising and painful to the union men. In view of the fact that Frank Brown, former superintendent of the industrial school and a recognized henchman of Hunt, had conveyed to the other delegates in the federation convention, less than a week before, assurance that the governor would never patronize any unfair restaurant. This assurance was given after that very Yee Sing restaurant had been under discussion.

Brown was sent for. He was piloted to a position of vantage, where he could perceive the governor conveying a snowy white morsel to his mouth.

"What do you think of that?" was hissed in Brown's ear.

"Well," he replied speculatively, "it looks like a good lobster."

DESPONDENT MINER DRINKS CYANIDE

(From Saturday's Daily)

William Grierson, who returned Thursday from the strike zone of Colorado, brings news of the finding of the body of Jake Fennell and a note by his side showing the man committed suicide. Fennell entered an old store of a coal mine, and it is believed drank cyanide of potassium, a small empty bottle being found near the body. The remains were badly decomposed, and death had taken place several days before.

The only intimation the deceased gave of ending his life, was his conversation with a friend, when he said he was "going away for good to get out of trouble." Fennell was a miner well known in this section, and until recent years had worked in mills where cyaniding was his specialty. Poor health made him despondent.

FIRST PAPERS.

(From Thursday's Daily.)

Four Italians, Pete Giocopazzi, Barni Savioini, Antonio Fontannini and Andrea Amandoli, all of Jerome, announced their desire to become citizens of the United States yesterday by filing first citizenship papers in the court clerk's office.

WALTER WALKER WINS BABY PRIZE

(From Sunday's Daily.)

According to the judgment of three people who must know a great deal more about babies than the average mortal, little Walter T. Walker, aged 2 1/2 months, is the best formed, most healthy and grandest all-around little baby among the many exhibited at the baby show at the fair grounds Friday and Saturday under the efficient direction of C. C. Baker, who gave much time and patient attention to his part of the program.

And according to the same judgment, little Roberta Connell is the prettiest baby of those exhibited, while little Bernard Drake was the most sensibly dressed child at the exhibition.

These decisions were rendered yesterday afternoon by Dr. Meserve, of Tucson, Miss Anna B. Keeler and Miss Nellie O'Sullivan, all experts on the baby question. They gave particular attention to the examination with reference to the sweepstakes prize, in which were entered all the babies which had made a showing of any kind as prize getters, and it was the unanimous decision that the Walker child, which was in Friday's exhibit, was deserving of it.

Yesterday's Winners.

In the exhibition yesterday there were two classes and those winning are given below:

Class Three: (Twelve to eighteen months old)—Russell V. Fergodo, first; Lewis St. Claire McIntyre, second; and Lester Marks, third.

Class Four: (Eighteen months to two years) Frank A. Cornwall, first; Arnold Jackson, second and Robert Morgan, third.

Mrs. L. N. Bailey won the prize of an Armour ham for the largest family of children.

The first child in each class was presented a beautiful Armour silver cup by Mr. Baker. Mrs. M. Trellas presented Roberta Connell, the beauty child, with a beautiful baby coat, and the most sensibly dressed child, Bernard Drake, was presented with a costly sterling silver set, known as the Brisley prize.

Dr. Wilson Lectures.

Dr. Wilson delivered a very instructive lecture on the subject of "Babies," in the presence of the many mothers gathered at the tent yesterday. Health hints that will be beneficial for years to every one who heard this lecture were given. The speaker also talked on the general care of babies, advising mothers how to avoid much trouble in rearing their children by teaching them certain things at propitious times during their growth.

Mr. Baker says that at next year's fair, if he is here, he will try to have a baby show that will be better than the one this year, and thinks that the third show of this kind will be easier to handle.

TAPS SOUND FOR CIVIL WAR VETERAN

(From Saturday's Daily)

Advices were received from Phoenix yesterday of the death of Samuel Goldsworthy, at the home of his son, W. S. Goldworthy, old age being given as the cause. The deceased until a few years ago was a resident of Prescott, and enjoyed a large number of friends. He was an expert accountant and filled positions of trust and responsibility in this and other cities of the state. During his long residence here he was well known for his zeal in the cause of the Grand Army, and affiliated on public occasions with Barrett Post. He served from beginning to end of the civil war with a Kansas regiment and attained distinction for bravery in many conflicts. He was a native of England, but came to this country before the war occurred, proving his patriotism without being naturalized as a citizen, although his father enjoyed that right. The deceased was aged about 77 years, and the remains pass through Prescott this afternoon for burial in Kansas.

HIGH HONOR.

OFFICERS HAVE A WILD AUTO RACE

(From Sunday's Daily.)

After one of the most exciting and strenuous experiences of all his official life, including an automobile race of more than one hundred miles and a "scoot" over two railroad lines, during a time that he hourly expected to be caught and lose his man, Sheriff C. C. Keeler, an officer who has the reputation of accomplishing things in his line which would make the average sheriff quail, arrived home from Los Angeles Friday night with Howard E. Marsh, the man wanted here on a charge of embezzlement, and placed his prisoner safely behind the bars in the county jail.

It takes Sheriff Keeler to tell the story of his trying experience on the coast during his eight-day stay after this man, if one would hear it in its most interesting form.

When the sheriff arrived in Los Angeles an attorney for Marsh at once commenced to make him all the trouble he could with the view of finally foiling him in his attempt to get Marsh out of the state. A habeas corpus proceeding was started, and the hearing set for last Friday at ten a. m. A protest against the extradition of Marsh was also filed with the governor at Sacramento. Sheriff Keeler, however, stayed there until he had gotten around both, and out of the state with the man he went after.

Extradition was granted after the sheriff had waited two days at the capital, over Columbus day and the day previous, on account of the failure of Marsh's attorney to appear.

Armed with the extradition warrant Sheriff Keeler went back to Los Angeles, where he was informed that the habeas corpus proceedings had been dismissed. He arranged with the sheriff there to get his man ready for departure, but while this was being done the habeas corpus was revived, by some means, and it became a matter of getting his man outside of the state before the papers could be served on the Yavapai sheriff or stay there indefinitely and fight the case, with a chance to lose out altogether.

Keeler procured the best auto and driver money could hire. He got his man into it clandestinely keeping himself hid from view as best he could. And the race commenced. The auto fairly flew over the hills and prairies of California until it had landed his prisoner at Banning, where a S. P. train could be caught. About half way on the trip the machine ran out of gasoline. Sheriff Keeler would not stop for he knew in all reason that they were after him with habeas corpus papers. He procured another machine and proceeded, the larger machine overtaking him later, when he re-transferred himself and Marsh into it.

Of course Mr. Keeler does not know, but he is thoroughly convinced that there are some officials at Los Angeles who have a race story to tell which would be as interesting from their point of view as his story is from his standpoint.

"But I got my man," he says, "although I would not go through that experience again and ride that fast over one hundred miles of territory in an automobile for the best two hundred dollars in gold Uncle Sam ever rolled out."

Sheriff Keeler deserves great credit for the manner in which he handled the Marsh case. And yet it is the way he performs all his official duties.

FORSAKES THE SEA FOR THE PINES

(From Thursday's Daily.)

Harrison B
